

A Dark Day in Washington

Yesterday a Hindu clergyman made history by offering the morning prayer before the US Senate in Washington. A Hindu clergyman. Not a Catholic, not a Protestant, not a Jew. A Hindu.

This is a clergyman from a religion that does not believe in our Christian God, the one true God, nor in Jesus Christ.

Where were his prayers going? By whom were they received? What evil spiritual presences did he bring into the Senate by being there and leading the prayer.

There were three people in the gallery who objected. One shouted something to the effect that this was an abomination. One news report gives these as his words: "Lord Jesus, forgive us, Father, for allowing the prayer of the wicked, which is an abomination in your sight."

Another of the three shouted "You shall have no other gods before you..." The three were taken away and arrested on a misdemeanor charge. They declared they were Christians and patriots.

This Hindu clergyman had been invited by a senator who is quoted in several places as saying, "I think it speaks well of our country that someone representing the faith of about a billion people comes here and can speak in communication with our heavenly Father regarding peace."

But he wasn't speaking to Our Heavenly Father, certainly not my Heavenly Father! It's not the same god! And those one billion the senator mentions - they're all lost souls on their way to hell unless something happens to change their hearts and they accept Christ!

The senator apparently doesn't know this truth any more than many other Americans and various interest groups who find acceptance of this Hindu prayer another act of tolerance.

The god of this world, the devil, has blinded the eyes of unbelievers. And obviously the eyes of enough in Washington to let this happen.

We are in the midst of recording a series of television programs on the return of Jesus, the signs of the times. He said we could recognize them. This is one sign right before your faces.

The founding fathers must be shaking their heads if they can see what happened. I expect Our Father is. I also expect his heart is hurting.
